

Top of the Hill

Volume 4, Number 4

MBA Junior School

June 1999

Atlanta - A Bonding Experience

By The Quinn

The eighth grade trip was quite fun and relaxing. For a whole 3 days, we had a ton of fun. In Atlanta, we visited the Varsity, the Coca-Cola Museum, the Martin Luther King Museum, the CNN Center, Underground Atlanta, a Braves game, Six Flags over Georgia, the famous Houston's, the Lenox Mall. Of course, the highlight of the trip for those of us who were fortunate to go was Hooters (because of their food). The hotel rooms were also quite nice, especially because of the CNN station, a very educational station.

After the long bus ride, the trip started with a visit to the Varsity, where we all got an excellent lunch and some of us got a Varsity hat. Since some of my fellow students and I had to kill Lovett in lacrosse (the final score was about 12-2), I missed the Martin Luther King Museum and the CNN Center. I did get to go to the Coca-Cola Museum, and I would like to tell all 7th graders that when you go there next year, you have to try

Anderson and Fletcher snuggle while Will and Blake look on enviously the Beverly. It is one of my all-time favorite drinks. The Braves game was a blast, and nearly everyone got one of those long cups. By the end of the game, Darden had convinced the fans sitting next to us that we were all debaters and that we had just debated that day. Jack was in the process of convincing a girl he was 18, but Mr. Spiegel ruined that plan. The next day we visited Six Flags, the most amazing theme park I have ever seen. Some of my favorite rides were the Scorchier, the Mind Bender, and the Ninja. The overall best ride was undoubtedly the Monster

Plantation, where nearly everyone got in trouble. One would find that if he threw ice or spit at the characters, a voice would come on saying, "Please stop throwing ice or security will be called." Ray actually got out of the boat and walked around on the props. Some got to go on The Batman, but those people were only the ones who wanted to wait in line for 1 1/2 hours to go on a three minute ride. Supposedly, Goldberg was at Six Flags, though I didn't see him. Our first holdup of the trip came when Clayton and Jack Lewis did not come to the buses at the end of the day for about an hour. They claimed they were "stuck" on a ride. Isn't it ironic that they were going around with two girls the whole day? We came back tired from the long day, and we received a nourishing meal from Houston's. On the last day, we made a 2-hour stop at the Lenox mall where we were just about the only ones there for the first hour. There was an FAO Schwartz and an All Wound Up there, and many of us had light saber and gun wars. Afterwards, we took the long trip home, sadly missing only one day of school.

Other highlights of the trip were BDT (Bus Driver Terry - "Sit Down!"), "The bus is not at a complete stop, it's just not moving."--Wade Williams, Ian's goo on the way back, and Mr. Brown's dancing. The only complaints that I have from the trip, that I know other students share as well, is that maybe students should have had a choice between going to the MLK Museum and the CNN Center or going to support the eighth grade lacrosse team in their final real game of the season. Also, the eighth grade trip is to Atlanta every year. Maybe switching cities every year would be a more enjoyable experience. Overall, however, the trip was a great success and a lot of fun for the

Peter never quite got over the stuffed animal stage

MOVIES

Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me

By Wilson Garrett

Mike Myers (Wayne's World and SNL) returns as Austin Powers and Dr. Evil in Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me, the sequel to the 1996 hit Austin Powers. Myers also plays a clone of Scott Evil called Fat B (a word not printable)d, who is constantly bleeped out throughout the entire movie. The movie picks up right after the original movie, with Austin and Vanessa Kensington (Elizabeth Hurley) on their honeymoon. Vanessa is quickly eliminated, but I will not spoil how (hint: she has machine guns in her jubilees). Returning to his role as #2 is Robert Wagner, who did not die in the original movie. Heather Graham (Boogie Nights), plays sexy CIA agent Felicity Shagwell. Michael York returns as Ba-

Elizabeth Hurley: #1 reason I'm going to see the movie

Heather Graham: #2 reason I'm going to see the movie

sil Exposition, and Seth Green returns as Scott Evil.

Robert Lowe plays a young #2, and Verne Troyer plays a clone of Dr. Evil named Mini-Me. Other stars in the movie include Kristen Johnston (3rd Rock from the Sun) as Ivana Humpalot, Will Ferrel (SNL) returns as Mustafa, Cindy Margolis, and Clint Howard. Also,

Jerry Springer appears in the movie as himself, and hosts a talk show with Scott Evil and his father, Dr. Evil, called "My Father is Evil and Wants to Take Over the World."

This movie looks entertaining, funny, and very shagadelic, and I strongly recommend you go see it the day it comes out. "Yeah baby."

"He's an exact clone of you....1/4 the size"
"I will name him Mini-Me"

The Mummy

By Vivek Surti

The Mummy was a pretty good movie. Starring Brendan Fraser as archeologist Rick O'Connell and Rachel Weisz as Evie, a librarian, The Mummy has comedy, romance, and action. The movie is set in the 1920's, and O'Connell is searching the ancient city of Hamnupatra, or the "City of the Dead" as it was called in ancient Egypt. The city is supposed to have a 3000 year old curse on it and when O'Connell tries to reveal treasures, he crosses paths with ancestors of the pharaohs' bodyguards who are protecting Egypt from the curse. O'Connell and Evie meet when Evie and her brother Jonathon save O'Connell from being hanged. When the gang goes out to find the ancient treasures of Hamnupatra, especially a book made of gold, they meet American archeologists who are lead by O'Connell's former companion, Benny. While the gang of three is searching the city, they come upon the tomb of one of the high priests of the ancient pharaohs. His name was Imhotep and when his tomb was opened, he brought with him the plagues of Egypt. When Imhotep is released, certain doom is spelled for the citizens of Egypt. Of course, you'll have to see the movie to fill in the blanks.

The special effects were probably the biggest pro for the movie along with the enticing scenery and a good fictional depiction of Egyptian architecture and history. On the other hand there were lame jokes, a bad love story, and the movie was not as scary as I thought it could have been. All in all, it was an ok flick. I enjoyed it, but it could've been better. Rating (out of ten): 8

ENTERTAINMENT

The J Files: The Exodus

By Jay Howell

The story you are about to read (if you chose to do so) could be true, but then again, maybe it isn't. It all depends on whether you want to believe it is true or not. The characters in this case represent real MBA faculty, but the names have been changed to protect the "innocent" or to fool those people who are incredibly stupid.

New job = new look

Case #42972-34

Author's note: due to the fact that the school year is practically over, the writer, being me, is trying to make fun of as many teachers as possible due to the other fact that the writer will not be able to write on the Top of the Hill staff next year. The writer hopes, ahem, that some 7th grader will carry on the tradition of making fun of teachers in an extremely sarcastic and

Student's loss, animal's gain evil manner.) I was called back to the scandal-prone MBA campus after the school was notified of a sudden exodus of many teachers. I was in the middle of a very important case (Author's Note: He wasn't) that I was forced to quit so I could take on this investigation.

The first suspect I investigated was, let's say, Mr. Vet. His claim was leaving to enter veterinarian school. He is really being transferred by the Bow Tie Alliance to another section. Since he has recruited another agent in a J. Callen, the BTA is reassigning him to a new hostile unbowed area.

The next suspect was a certain Mr. Flower. He is leaving to go to Boston. That much is (flower tie) true. His intentions are not, however, to find a new (flower tie) job. I think his 3rd and 8th period classes made fun of his tie (flower tie) a bit too much. He simply could not take it anymore. He is retreating (flower tie) to his girlfriend, Helga, the voluminous old lady on the Earth Science (flower tie) lab calendar.

The third suspect, under the alias Martha Thurmond, has been on a 7-year mission from God to transform hordes of seventh and eighth grade hooligans into upstanding gentlemen, scholars, and athletes. Good things can't last forever, and it is now time for Mrs. Thurmond to move on to other realms. The seventh grade demerit list has never been shorter. Farewell, Mrs. Thurmond. Mission accomplished! Finally, a Mr. Brooks C. is leaving to take the head job at Ensworth. This is true. In a case explained earlier, he is moving to spread his alien language to yet another school. He is bound to dissolve society by first dissolving our Mr. C. burst through the door. "I have had just about enough of your making fun of my handwriting. It's about time you see me launch, at you! But for your convenience, I have built in a 10 second cushion for you to say your final prayers before I sick my chalk monsters on you."

Mr. Green popped in. "That's right, men, we're killing you, men." Following this statement, he retreated to the office with one Mrs. Brown, not a part of this scandal.

Mr. Higgins hides his flower tie

Mission accomplished

Mr. Fuzz also stopped by. "Actually, that's a very good series of brutalities. He deserves it for making fun of my cup."

Total carnage followed as I was brutally, yet strangely, hilariously mutilated. And that was the end of the J Files. (Author's Note: The J Files are dead! Yes!)

"Wait, I'm not done," Mr. C. interrupted, "if any dumb 7th grader thinks of carrying on this dumb tradition, I will return again to brutalize you as well. Hey, I could be interpreted as a Christ-like figure. Two comings. Get it? I've still got it!" And then the fire alarm went off.

SPORTS

The Ball is All

By The Quinn

When people think of spring sports at MBA, the first sports that come to mind are usually baseball or track, maybe even soccer. These sports are fine for the average Joe, but for the real man, there is only one sport: lacrosse. And the 8th grade lacrosse team dominated the game of lacrosse. With a record of 9-1, the team went from state to state across the Southeast, crushing every opponent except for McCallie. Starting in mid-March, the team improved from their first win against Birmingham until their final real win against Lovett on the Atlanta trip. The final game of the season was against the seventh grade, a gru-

The Hearninator

Jeff shoots; Jeff scores?

eling, gut wrenching victory over strong competitors. Stars of the team included Jack Bryant, Paul Nealy, and Wade Williams at middle, Richard Lodge in goal, the whole starting attack (Adams, Boyd, Fleming), and the whole starting defense (Lewis, Lutrell, Graham). Coach Cooper and Coach King were great coaches and teachers of the game, and their volunteer coaching is much appreciated. Some highlights of the season were Wade William's unique style of defense (swinging his stick around with one hand in order to scare the opponent), the two wins in Cincinnati even with freezing temperature and rain, the starting attack playing defense and the starting defense playing attack against the 7th graders, and Bennett Graham's amazing 2 minutes as a fill-in goalie.

The season was a glorious one for all team members, and let me just say that the JV lacrosse team next year is going to be unbeatable.

Strokin'

By William Bartholomew

Before I tell you about the microbe tennis team's stellar season I would like to thank all of my fellow students for showing so much support by cheering us on this year. Did you even know there was a tennis team? Ok back to the season. Your MBA team won the 1999 HVAC tournament tying with the mighty tennis powerhouse Woodland. All of our team got to the finals of the tournament and two team members, Ted Tywang at number one singles and Greg Scruggs and Spence Patton at number two doubles, captured 1st place. We finished the regular season in 2nd place beating everyone except Woodland. As good as we were, we got slaughtered by MUS in practice matches at Memphis and in Nashville. Another good part of the season was when we beat McCallie and Teddy Tywang accidentally hit a McCallie player in the you know where and made him cry for 15 minutes (and you think tennis isn't rough!). Besides Ted Tywang, Greg Scruggs, and Spence Patton, members of our teams were: Matthew Naftalon at #2 singles, Robert Stewart at #3 singles, and William Bartholomew and Tim Vaughn at #1 doubles. Other members of our team were: Bailey Fish, Scott Hagan, Sam McDonald, Park Meadors, and Arthur Kim.

The Tywang Tornado

Will hits for love

SPORTS

Track: Third in the HVAC

By Matt Conrad

Though plagued by injuries through much of the season, the Microbe Track team finished third in the HVAC behind Benwood Middle School and Benwood Academy. In the field events, Matt Conrad finished 3rd and Michael Kwas finished 4th in the pole vault, Michael Koban finished 3rd in the long jump, and Blake Goodman finished 6th in the discus and 5th in the shot put. Other field event participants included: Juan Gonzalez, Fletcher Caldwell, Will Cade, Bill Cameron, Darden Orand, and Craig Boliek. In the 110 hurdles, Anderson Green won first place and Clayton Trammell finished second place. Brian Christie also qualified for the finals in the hurdles. The 4x100 relay team (David Harper, Corey Burton, Darden Orand, Blake Goodman, and Anderson Green) won third place. In the 400 meter run, Clayton Trammell won third place. Also qualifying for the 400 meter finals were Michael Koban and Will Cade. The 4 x 800 relay team (Nathan Mulherin, Matt Conrad, Robert Stewart, and Matt Serck) finished third.

In the 800 meter run, Brian Christie finished 8th. Other qualifiers in the 800 were Corey Burton and Ryan Nevin. The 4 x 200 relay (David Harper, Michael Koban, Clayton Trammell, and Anderson Green) finished third. One of the meet's highlights was the 1600 meter run, where MBA had 6 qualifiers:

Nathan Mulherin, Matt Conrad, Ben Newman,

David Scoville, and Robert Stewart. Nathan Mulherin won first place, Matt Conrad 2nd place, and Ben Newman 5th place. The most exciting race for MBA came at the very end of the meet with the 4 x 400 relay (Will Cade, Blake Goodman, Matt Serck and Clayton Trammell) finishing first over BMS and BA.

Thanks to Coaches Gaither, Christeson, and Seiters for their work this year, and thanks to all of the 7th and 8th graders who came out for track. The 2000 microbe track team looks promising with Cole Bourland, Corey Burton, Edwin Conley, Tony

Boliek: All he needs is a tutu

What is Brian thinking about?

A. Virginia

B. Rage and Korn

C. New jokes about Conrad

Shortly afterwards, Will stole all the high jump equipment

Conrad finally clears four feet

Harper: The pride of the 7th grade

Camarata, David Harper, Michael Koban, Ryan Nevin, John Parker, Will Dixon, Alex Shofner and others returning.

SPORTS

Baseball: Playin' Like a Team

By Richard Howell

The 1999 Microbe Baseball team had a great season. We played as a team and we won as a team. The team, composed of 7th graders with great potential and 8th grade veterans was almost unbeatable. With great coaching from Mr. Higgins and Mr. Moxley, the MBA team couldn't have been any better.

Starting out with the inexperienced CPA Tigers, the Big Red was on a train to stardom. With great hitting by Robert "The Duck" Foster and great pitching from the whole staff, we beat the Tigers 12-2. The Pitching Staff, which included Hunter "Is that your mom whistling?" Hawkins, Chase "Brother of a Psycho" Jones, Scott "The Co-Leader of the Capassah" Pettus, Michael McDaniel, and Richard "The Co-Leader of the Capassah" Howell held up under 65 runs in a 9 game season. Next we faced BGA. We were now introduced with the term "ripped off." It was absolutely outrageous. The coach of a younger team came to the park, while we were playing our game, and told us that we'd have to stop, since she had the authorization to use the field. We had no

We trampled them 17-7. Then we faced CPA again and we again creamed them 14-4. We now were faced with a challenge, Freedom

Middle. They came out ready to play and we didn't. We fought back, but lost 8-7 in the final inning. Days later, we hosted the game versus our arch rival, Ensworth. We came out wanting to achieve revenge from last year and we wiped them out 13-1. Great pitching by Scott Pettus and hitting by Michael "McFish" "The Cuban", Fisher made this game just perfect. The next day we edged Grassland with a home run by Wesley "Langless" Langlois 12-10. Then we got beat by Woodland, no questions asked. For the final game of the season, we traveled all of 100 yards to again face our arch rival, Ensworth. I think I speak for everyone when I say I thought it would be a "cakewalk" but suprisingly, Ensworth came out to play. But with clutch hits by Justin Games and Chandler "Tigger" Tygard, and not to mention Whitney "Who's on First?" Mills' two hardfought strikeouts, we managed to beat the Tigers 3-2.

Tom "Panti" Santi was a great catcher. Catching every game for every inning is difficult, but Santi came through every time. John Eason also had a great season in the outfield. And who could forget Dan Gift. A superb manager as well as a funny guy is just what the team needed. Through my eyes, the team had a great season. Going 7-2 (with one game that doesn't count) was a very good record compared to last years's.

Santi says, "Don't even think about it."

McDaniel's perfect form

Sttttrrrriiikeee

Ball Four...Take your base

MOVIES

What is The Matrix?

By Ben Newman

The Matrix brings to the screen something more than the stereotypes suggests. The Matrix is an action movie with a considerable plot that has very few loose ends. Also, The Matrix blends a wide range of different elements of movie-making with much skill. There is no real set genre, and the movie does not work itself into any corners. The Matrix never gets boring — not because of relentless acting, but because it remains interesting and original to the movie's end.

The Tennessean writer who reviewed this movie didn't understand that it is a story, a very sound, interesting story, and thought that it was supposed to be a statement of philosophical truth. Though it has powerful elements of philosophy, they, too, are part of the story, and not the message, if there is one. The plot is understandable as well, though that reviewer seemed to think otherwise. Mission Impossible is much more difficult to follow, though both movies are equally as well-made and complex.

More than anything else, The Matrix is an art movie, though it lacks one thing that usually distinguishes independent art films. It is not filled with loose ends, and it tells a story that is not dependent on unresolved or random events for its meaning. For this reason, it is hailed as a departure from the generic nature of mainstream films, while, at the same time, it has made a considerable amount of money.

If you keep in mind that it was intended to be a live-action anime (Japanese) comic book, the purpose of the film remains in perspective. The special effects, so that you know, are every bit as spectacular as the reviews have made them out to be. The martial arts are so well-done that one director of a number of Jackie Chan's movies was quoted as having regretted the fact that The Matrix had accomplished what he had tried to achieve for many years, blending Western special effects with Japanese martial arts. Also, the change in settings is quite spectacular, with a sort of cyber-ish counterculture beginning that fades back into a corporate office building setting, only to be interrupted by a call to adventure from a resistance group from outside The Matrix, which is the world in which all of us live. The photography is not lacking either, and these settings are all filmed in great detail and with great skill. Almost every frame of the movie can stand alone as a photograph worthy of framing. No movie is ever perfect because of all of the elements and all of the variables, especially when it comes to acting, but this movie is as near perfection as any I have seen in the last few months.

Curious? Go see the movie.

You are probably aware that the rating of The Matrix is 'R.' The rating is appropriate, though there is no real gratuitous violence, as what violence there is makes sense as a clear part of the plot. As much as being an indicator of content as far as violence or other questionable material is concerned, the rating is an indicator of the audience for which it is intended. Do not expect, if you go to see it, that you will be able to sit back and be presented with each plot point in painstaking clarity. If you are to take something back with you after watching it, as many have, you must be able to engage your mind and try to take in all of the plot. This isn't too hard to do, as the movie is quite sound, and it may take more than one time seeing it, but this movie is worth every bit of the effort. The night Star Wars opened, I seriously considered going to see The Matrix instead of Star Wars Episode 1: The Phantom Menace.

Star Wars: The Awaited Prequel

By Brian Elliott

Wednesday May 19 was an important date for Star Wars fans everywhere. Episode 1: The Phantom Menace, the first installment of the Star Wars series opened at 12:01 in the morning. People cheered when the 20th Century Fox logo appeared. They cheered louder when the Lucasfilm logo appeared. They cheered even louder when "A long time ago in a galaxy far, far away..." appeared. They cheered even louder when Star Wars appeared. Some old faces included Jabba the Hutt, R2-D2, C-3PO (in an incomplete form), and Yoda. Returning characters in new faces include Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin Skywalker (a.k.a. Darth Vader), and Senator Palpatine (a.k.a. the Emperor). Anakin is believed to be the one who will bring balance to the Force. His Jedi traits are shown through an amazing pod racing scene (very similar to Ben-

Sweet, sweet Queen Amidala

Hur), his ability to fix things, and a dream he has. Replacing Chewbacca as the creature sidekick is Jar Jar Binks, a fish-man who is very clumsy. Jar Jar is a completely computer-generated character, a first in the movie industry. Though most people find him annoying, some people appreciate his "acting." Filling in the role of the bad guys are Darth Maul and Darth Sidious. Little is known about these characters, but their intentions are clear: to wipe out the Jedi. One of the coolest new things in the new movie is Darth Maul's double-sided lightsaber which he uses to fight two Jedi at once. However, if you thought Princess Leia's cinnamon bun hairsyle was bad, wait until you see Queen Amidala's outfits. The special effects in this movie were amazing. Laser blasts flying everywhere, a whole army of computer generated droids, an entire race of computer-generated Gungans, a racing scene Jeff Gordon would be proud of and a planet made up of one large city with vehicles flying everywhere are just a few examples.

Continued on page 8

OTHER

Star Wars (Cont.)

Merchandising for the new Star Wars movie is at an ultimate height. Campaigns with Taco Bell, Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Pizza Hut are raking in the dough. New action figures, lightsaber toys, card games, puzzles, inflatable chairs, soap dishes, toothbrush holders, shirts, hats, and a must-have: Yoda puppets are everywhere just eating away at wallets.

After seeing it three times, I can already say quotes, know the names of the podracers and droids, and recognize that Qui-Gon Jinn's communicator is made out of a Gillette Woman's shaving razor with the ripply rubber grips. I think that everyone should see this movie even if they aren't Star Wars fans. As Yoda says: "Try not. Do or do not. There is no try."

Remember This?

--Lacrosse: "Two lines" and "Who wants it?"--Brain-sucking Sabre tooth tigers in Mr. Higgins earth science class--Charlie Pate's quest for 63 coke spills--"Sko"--Oompie and Scrugby--"If you dye hydrogen blue and oxygen yellow, would you have green water?"--Dan Gift--Josh Mayhew's "The Lost Earth Science Book"--Ray's Baggio shirt--Rob and Raife in Higgins 8th period class--"If a bird flies too high, will it get sucked out into space?"--Dillon Richey--"Are the MBA swimmers as fast as small speed boats?"--Dillon Richey--"Mr. Wims, you didn't really get that compass at Red Lobster?"--"Hack, cough, cough, Hack! Oh gosh, there's my lung on the floor."--Woolsey--"I had a shirt like that one day, but I burned it."--Mr. Lundstrom to John Parker--Zippety Zelle--"Lion King" serenades from Gregory "Truck" McCord (GMC)--Richard Rhame's pick-me-up--"Kuperschmidt, get out of that cubby hole!"--Mr. Russell--"Tenochtitlan"--"Is asparagus an element?"--Forrest Rich's giving birth to the Minotaur--Tywang's table tennis--calculator games--Weenie bowl promotion--a taped debater--wishing to see the Fishing Club video--Mr. Corzine's quiz bluffs--The Koban method/pulling a Koban-wrong formula; right answer--Parker bellows, Parker rides, and Parker shirts--"Yeahdude"--Mr. Wim's Nutrigrain bars--Edwin Conley's stunning portrayal of Medea--"Where's Francis?"--Taylor's "crazy as a June bug" and other homespun colloquialisms--Mr. Russell's airplane analogies "Boys, you're going to crash. We've got a mission in enemy territory. Have you got your survival kit?"--"Tempus est exire"--the limit of Wade's Latin knowledge--manually oscillating the fans in Mr. Russ's class--Craig's "oral diarrhea"--Senior prank--"Toga! Toga! Heyyyyyy!"--Will Caldwell's "rockin" in assembly--explosions and jackhammer inter-

Charlie's group therapy session

ruptions--Futurama and Family Guy--quoting The Simpsons--Star Wars: The Phantom Menace--Owen Hart's death--Mrs. Thurmond's last year at MBA

1999 Presidential Physical Fitness Award Winners

Hashim Beaird
James Dade
Alex Shofner
Chandler Tygard
Trevor Yarbrough
Cole Bourland
Tom Santi
Taylor Tate
Ryan Nevin
Matt Francis
Michael Koban

A typical math help session

PICTURES

7th Grade Greek Mythology Plays

Daniel, Sam, Michael, and Branch star in their rendition of Perseus

Jason

Jason starring John, Bailey, Will, Edwin, John, and Mrs. Bourland's thumb

Hercules

Theseus

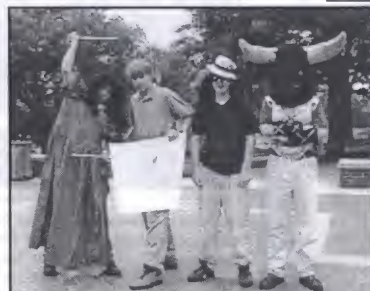

Oddyseus

Carter, Alex, Hashim, Charles, and Steve in 7th period 'Perseus

A great costume

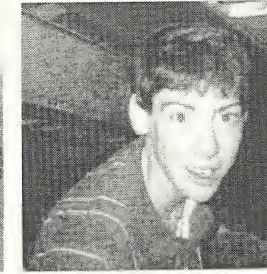

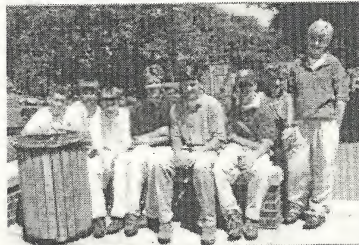

Theseus starring Forrest, Bill, Chris, and Harris as the Minotaur

Perseus

The Blue Goose, Matt, Chris, Michael, and Tom as the Nemean Lion

SPRING SHOTS

Top of the Hill Staff
Editor	Andrew Quinn
Production Manager	Vamsi Gaddipati
Assistant Production	Peter Power
Photographer	Alec Berryman
Sports Editor	Richard Howell
Features Editor	Hamilton Berry
Entertainment Editor	Brian Christie
Faculty Advisor	Mrs. Bourland